error occurs A: I found the issue. I had a php script that was included in the unit tests. This php script did have a closing brace. This lead to the first include to end before the second could start and thus the error. I discovered this because one of the unit tests had another include in it and didn't have any problems, I added the code to the file that had the problem and this was the error. I have no idea why this would happen, but now I know what to look for next time. Thanks to all that helped. Semantic category assignment affects sustained and transient attention: a case study. The role of semantic categories in the allocation of attention was investigated in a patient (AH) who suffered damage to the right anterior and posterior temporo-parietal junction (TPJ). She was asked to look for a target among distractors belonging to two different semantic categories. The target was presented in a square window (side, 5 degrees) that was either a color-shape or a color-color. Participants were asked to ignore the distractors and to respond
